As an infant, Jean Baptiste, otherwise known as Pomp, traveled with his mother, Sacagawea, to the Pacific on the Lewis & Clark Expedition in 1805-1806. Pomp grew up with the Mandan, located in what is now North Dakota, until 1805. As an adult, Pomp came to California with the Donner Party in 1846-1847. He spent the next 25 years in California, primarily working in the gold fields and as a guide in Auburn.

Displays and information about his life and about all or part of the Lewis & Clark Trail during these 25 years (2005-2006) will be available at the Birthday Party.

Vol. 8, No. 3
July/October 2008

Alexander Hamilton Willard, blacksmith and gunsmith, was born in July 1777 on his father's farm at what was later called Condon's Corner, Charlestown Town (today's Town of Langdon), Cheshire county (today's Sullivan county), New Hampshire. His father was Jonathan Willard, often called "Lieutenant Willard" by his neighbors as that was the rank he held when he mustered out of the New Hampshire Line in 1781. His mother was called "Betty Caswell" in the Town Record that took notice of his birth.

Alexander Willard’s Birthplace:
The junction of roads at which the farmhouse stood can still be found, though the structure itself burned in 1891. The north-south road on the map is today called Meaney Road and it is intersected
