President's Corner

Lewis & Clark were faithful record-keepers, and in that spirit the national office of the Foundation in Great Falls asks each chapter to send reports on the hours our members are spending to preserve and interpret the Trail. These totals are important when submitting grants since they show the value of donated time by some 2,500 members across the country. Our Foundation's small staff cannot personally reach out from east to west to protect the Trail and

Ice Age Floods — July 12 in West Linn on the Tualatin

Lewis & Clark saw many wonders of geology as they descended the Columbia River, including evidence of a massive landslide, a recent volcanic eruption, and the waterfalls lining the Gorge. However, they had no idea how the Missoula Floods at the end of the last Ice Age had carved the landscape.

Volunteers from the Ice Age Floods Institute and the Nature Conservancy will guide us and describe the Floods and their impact on the West Linn / Willamette Valley area.

We'll meet at 10:00 AM at the Subway in the Albertsons complex in West Linn, carpool to Camassia Nature Preserve, and lunch at Fields Bridge Park.

CHAPTER ACTIVITIES

EXPLORE MORE!

Thelma Hagenmiller and Lyn Trainer lead Explore More!, a series of chapter trips which include a Lewis & Clark connection but also help members learn about other historical and cultural events that happened since that time.

In March the indefatigable Glen Kirkpatrick led 28 chapter members plus Jessie the dog on a hike to the mouth of the “Quicksand River” to see the Maya Lin bird blind installation of the Confluence project. He then recapitulated Sgt. Pryor’s jaunt up the Sandy to where the L&C scouting party turned around below Dabney State Park.

Glen Kirkpatrick explains the Confluence Project’s Sandy River Delta bird blind.

After the rigors of the day, chapter members reconvened in Gresham for pizza and refreshments, something the Corps would have envied.

THE INVENTORY PROJECT – HALF DONE

Our chapter is collecting information on 100+ Oregon L&C sites, artwork, centers, collections, trails, and other related locations. Over half have been documented so far. Our volunteers include Bob Brown, Larry Cotton, Arnetta Guion, Thelma Haggemiller & Jerry Herrmann, Mark Johnson, Mary Johnson, Glen Kirkpatrick, Jane Richardson & Lois Roby, Mike VonDerahe, Brad Yazzolino, and Dave Ellingson's student researchers.

Nearly all of the sites have been “claimed”—we should finish the project by summer’s end. However, there are a handful yet which YOU can visit, document, and help preserve. Please visit the chapter website for full information about the project and to sign up!

interpret the story except through publications, library reference services, and website updates.

Do you belong to a group that might like to stage a debate on the death of Meriwether Lewis? How about a field trip with friends to attend one of the Saltmakers events this summer at Seaside?

Whatever you do in your own networking with friends and organizations helps keep public awareness alive and well.

Let a board member know if you need chapter membership flyers for a presentation or event. Is your own national membership current for the fiscal year that ends September 30? Our secretary Dick Hohnbaum will appreciate an

Literature and York — February 21 at Lewis & Clark College

In a recent double event at Lewis & Clark College, chapter members heard Doug Erickson, college archivist and past president of the chapter, share his research on the 19th century literary heritage of Lewis & Clark.

He described the first written accounts; the reports by naturalists Wilson and Audubon; and fiction by writers such as Washington Irving, James Fenimore Cooper, whose books emerged in the years after the Expedition.

And in recognition of Black History Month, Northwest filmmaker Ron Craig screened his new documentary on York and described the challenges he overcame in producing the OPB video, entitled

Who Was York? A New Look at the Lewis & Clark Expedition.

Our chapter and the national foundation contributed to the project, which tells a compelling story.
