Historical Note:

The Clatsop County (Oregon) Genealogical Society, under the direction of its president Sandra Hargrove, initiated a project in August of 1999 to collect and certify direct and collateral descendants of the Lewis and Clark Expedition 1803 - 1806. This project came to be known as the Lewis and Clark Descendants Project. Hargrove and eight other members of the Society took records sent in by persons claiming to be descendants and applied genealogical research methods to verify that they were, indeed, direct or collateral descendants of members of the Lewis and Clark Expedition.

The Society certified a total of 1,669 descendants of members of the Lewis and Clark Expedition. The project yielded 826 direct descendants representing eight members of the Corps of Discovery, and 843 collateral descendants. Collateral descendants are those descended from members of the immediate family of the individual participant in the Expedition. The Society was able to certify descendants related to a total of 18 of 33 members of the Expedition. Records of persons who were not certified are not included in the collection; the Genealogical Society destroyed these documents.

The requirements of persons submitting records for certification was that they must be related to the families of the 33-person party that in 1804-1806 travelled from Fort Mandan to the Pacific Ocean and return as well as Sergeant Charles Floyd, who had likely died from appendicitis on August 20, 1804. This party was often referred to as the “permanent party.” Sergeant Floyd was included because he would have been in the permanent party had he survived.

There were a number of people who were associated with the expedition as guides, boatmen, and others, who did not make the journey to the Pacific. The Clatsop County Genealogical Society decided not to certify descendants of these other persons in order to keep the scope of the project reasonable. (For a complete list of the permanent party Expedition members, see www.lewisandclark.org – genealogy chart) At the conclusion of the project, the Genealogical Society produced The Lewis and Clark Corps of Discovery: Their Lives and Their Lineage, a two volume 1,200 page book. The book is available in the William P. Sherman Library and Archives.

Scope and Contents:

The collection is composed primarily of submissions made to the Clatsop County (Oregon) Genealogical Society by persons who were certified as direct or collateral descendants of members of the Lewis and Clark Expedition’s permanent party.

Of the 34 members of the permanent party of the expedition, direct and collateral descendants have been established for 18 members of the party. Descendants were certified for the following: William E. Bratton, Toussaint Charbonneau (Jean Baptiste “Pomp” Charbonneau), William Clark, John Colter, George Drouillard, Joseph and Reuben Field, Charles Floyd and Nathaniel Pryor, Patrick Gass, Meriwether Lewis, John Ordway, George Shannon, John Shields, Peter Weiser, Peter Willard, and Joseph Whitehouse. As documented by the Descendants Project this group produced 58 known children, 34 boys and 24 girls. There are no known family records for the other 15 members of the Expedition. Also, there are no records for the Newfoundland dog, Seaman, who accompanied the party.

Two of the members were brothers (Joseph and Reuben Field), two were cousins (Charles Floyd and Nathaniel Pryor), and two were married to each other and had a baby boy (Toussaint Charbonneau, Sacagawea and Jean Baptiste Charbonneau). It is known that twenty-two of the men married after the Expedition. Reuben Field, George Gibson and John Thompson were married, but there were no known children. York was married, but nothing is known about his family. It has been determined that seven of the men definitely never married, and four had no known marriages.

To confirm family ties, relatives needed documentation – birth and death certificates, wills, land deeds, marriage licenses, cemetery records, obituaries, and records pages from bibles for each generation. This collection contains these documents. Upon establishing proof of lineage, a certificate was sent to each descendant documenting the certification.

Envelopes used to mail in the records were photocopied onto acid-free paper in order to preserve the information while conserving space. The Clatsop County Genealogical Society did not send information about persons who sent in material but were not certified. This information was destroyed. Copies of personal information from anyone still alive were also destroyed, but research records were kept.

Arrangement:

The Lewis and Clark Descendants Project collection is comprised of 450 folders. The collection is arranged in two series: Descendants Project Administrative Records, 1999-2005 arranged topically and chronologically; and, Descendant Project Certification Records, seventeenth century through 2005, arranged alphabetically. The collection starts with two folders that contain information on the process used in the project, general correspondence, and miscellaneous information on the project. Next is a folder containing Corps of Discovery Facts, followed by folders on an art project and on the Chinook Chief Comcoly. The remaining folders are arranged in alphabetical order first by member of the expedition and then by the person submitting the records for certification. When multiple family members were included under one submission, they were filed under the person who made the submission. Copies of their envelopes were included to show addresses and notes. At the end of each Expedition member's record a miscellaneous folder contains general correspondence and information submitted on behalf of that member.
